Advantages for our ESL Students:

⇒ Students will develop reading, test taking, note taking, and critical thinking skills that are necessary to succeed in content courses for degrees and transfer by directly applying these skills to the Psych 101 course.

⇒ Students will increase their confidence for taking degree-oriented classes.

⇒ Students will have a supplemental instruction leader connected to the Psych 101 section.
SPRING 2014 ESL-64R & Psych 101 Learning Community

(This Learning Community is only open to English as a Second Language students)

For Spring 2014, ESL-64R Reading and Vocabulary Level 2 (4 units) and Psych 101 (3 units) will be linked together as a learning community.

Psych 101 section 1690 (L. Leon) Tuesdays and Thursdays 3:30-4:45 @ San Jacinto Campus—For this learning community, students must select section 1690.

&

ESL-64R section 1689 (D. Peace) Tuesdays and Thursdays 5:00-6:50 @ San Jacinto Campus

Important Reminders:

♦ Students must enroll in both the ESL-64R and Psych 101. If a student drops either course for any reason, the other course will also be dropped. There are no exceptions to this rule.

♦ There are no prerequisites for Psych 101, but there is for ESL-64R. To be eligible for ESL-64R, students must have completed ESL-63R with an A, B, or C or scored 58 or higher on the CELSA placement test.

♦ ESL students who do not meet the prerequisite for ESL-64R may request to take a reading assessment test for a chance to be placed into ESL-64R (contact Dan Peace at dpeace@msjc.edu for inquiries).

♦ Students who have already completed ESL-64R are not eligible for this learning community.
