Metamorphoses
By Mary Zimmerman

Based on Ovid’s transformation myths, the play subtly mixes the ancient stories of pathos and tragedy with contemporary language, humor, and thought, all enacted in and around a large pool of water in the center of the stage. Come spend a couple hours poolside, as actors create worlds that seem to dissolve and reappear with the grace that is found only after a cleansing rainstorm.

Passengers
By Sam Bobrick

A dark comedy with stories that range from touching to hilarious and all points between: “This play is a fresh, idiosyncratic, irreverent comedy set in, of all places, a bus station. In eight sketches, a series of characters meet in the bus station. The encounters weave together a subtle but profound theme...Passengers is a great script. The characters are good and the dialog witty and sharp...Everything about this show is unexpected and unconventional.” - Niles Daily Times
